INSURGENTS IN HOUSE ACCEPT G.O.P. TAX PLAN

Representative Longworth's Compromise on Mellon Bill May Go Through

CUT AUTO CHARGES

Elimination of Tires and Accessory Charges Voted By the House

Washington, Feb. 28.—Virtual agreement between Republican organization and insurgent leaders was reached today on the Longworth compromise to replace the Democratic income rates now in the revenue bill.

After a conference between leaders of the two factions President Coolidge was told that Republicans of the house were confident the Democratic rates would be eliminated in the final vote on the bill.

Washington, Feb. 28.—House Republican insurgents agreed today to the Longworth compromise on surtax rates and if the Republican organization yields to a slightly lower normal rate leaders of the group indicated they would vote to eliminate the Democratic income tax schedule from the revenue bill.

Resuming consideration of the bill the house voted to cut in half the 5 percent tax on automobile tires, accessories and parts and to exempt automobile trucks and wagons with a chassis costing $1,000 or less. Those with chassis costing more would be taxed at 3 percent.

An attempt to restore the 3 percent tax on chewing gum was rejected, 152 to 129.

Ask 25 Percent Off
The compromise presented by Mr. Longworth called for a flat 25 percent reduction in the surtax rates in the existing law, with the same brackets retained. This would make the maximum rate of 12.5 percent on income in excess of $100,000 as proposed in the Mellon plan. The Democratic maximum surtax is 44 percent on incomes in excess of $50,000.

The compromise further provides for a 2 percent minimum normal rate, applying to incomes below $4,000 and 6 percent above that amount. The Mellon rates were 3 and 6 percent. The Democratic rates in the bill are 2 percent on incomes below $5,000; 4 percent on incomes between $5,000 and $8,000, and 6 percent on incomes above that amount.

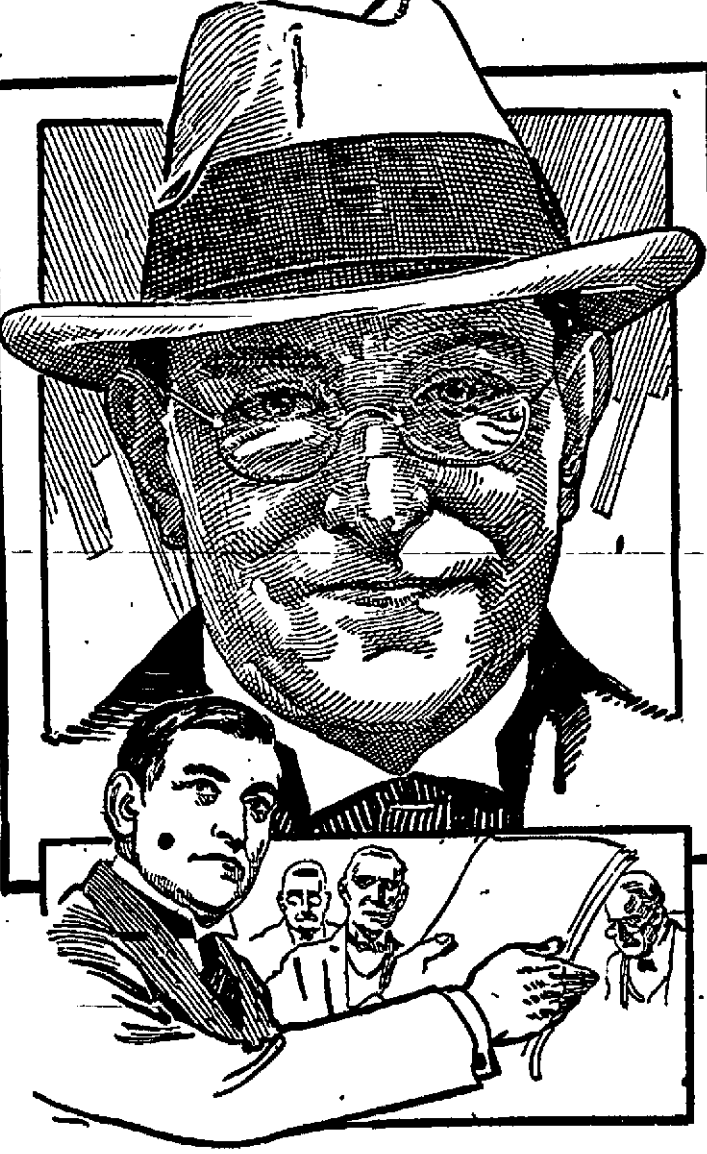

IMMIGRATION CHANGE
Washington, Feb. 28.—The census of 1910 was definitely adopted today by the senate immigration committee as the basis for immigration quotas under the new immigration law. The committee also decided by a close vote to reduce the quota percentage from 3 percent to 2 percent.

CITIZENS IN TOWN DRIVE OFF BANDITS

Gang Fails in its Efforts to Loot Ellsworth, Minn., Store

Ellsworth, Minn., Feb. 28.—Bandits who attempted to rob the Crowley Department Store early today were driven off in a running gun fight by the town vigilantes after the store burglar alarm had been sounded. Two dozen shots were exchanged but so far as reported no one was injured.

The robbers, numbering four or five, drove into town about 3 o'clock this morning. Leaving two of their number outside the gang entered the store and proceeded to select clothing, bolts of silk and other merchandise.

Some time during this process the robbers set off the burglar alarm which aroused the citizens but despite this warning the robbers continued at their work.

Within a few minutes the vigilantes headed by Edward and Lawrence Pisterman advanced upon the store. The outposts immediately opened fire and as the vigilantes returned the fire the other members of the gang fled from the store for their automobiles, shooting as they fled. They failed to carry away any loot and disappeared in the darkness.

HILDRETH AND W. LAUDER NEAR FISTIC BATTLE

Lawyers Engaged in Townley Case in Fargo Clash in Court Room

WORD LIAR IS HURLED

Lauder Takes Exception to Statement Read by Arthur Lesueur

Fargo, Feb. 28.—Hot verbal arguments and near fistic encounters characterized the opening in Judge Leigh Monson's court here this morning of the preliminary hearing of A. C. Townley, former president and organizer of the Nonpartisan League, and J. J. Hastings, former president of the United Consumers Stores Company, who are charged with embezzling about $73,000 from the fund of the United Stores now in default.

But for the quick action of Judge Monson who sent out a hurried call for the Fargo police desk sergeant when W. S. Lauder of Wahpeton, attorney for Townley, and M. A. Hildreth, attorney for the state, started to race at each other to fight it out with their fists, court officials stated the hearing would have ended in disorder with the probable arrest of both Hildreth and Lauder for contempt of court.

Hildreth Advances
The argument that led up to the closely argued battle was precipitated when Hildreth took exception to some of the statements made by Lauder in the case.

Hildreth was the third witness called by the state this morning when the case resumed. He testified as to a conversation that he had with Hastings in July, 1923, during which he said Hastings told him that he (Hastings) was leaving North Dakota to go to the west, where he also testified that Hastings had a plan to reorganize the now defunct Scandinavian-American Bank.

During the progress of the testimony Lauder addressed a few remarks to the court in which he declared that the prosecution of Townley and Hastings was political and that the state was "attempting to try the Nonpartisan League."

Reads Statement
Arthur Lesueur, special prosecutor for the state, then called attention to a statement which he declared Lauder had made to him. This statement as given by Lesueur:

"Lesueur I want you to distinctly understand that my connection with A. C. Townley is strictly professional. He is entitled to a defense and my duty as a lawyer requires me to defend him but I know he is a dam crook."

When this was read Lauder shouted that it was a lie, whereupon Hildreth also asserted that Lauder had made the same statement to him.

Lauder turned to Hildreth and passed the same remark to him whereupon Hildreth sprang to his feet with the declaration that "no one can call me a liar."

Friends of the two men, aided by court officials, however, held them apart until the police sergeant arrived when peace again prevailed in the court.

GERMANY TO PAY BELIEF

Schwab Sees Reparations Settlement Soon

New York, Feb. 28.—Charles M. Schwab, of Bethlehem Steel Corporation returned after his first visit to Germany since 1912, convinced that the German government would do its utmost to pay whatever reparations were fixed by the allied commission.

He expressed astonishment at the extent Germany's biggest industries had deteriorated since the war and declared that the well-being of all central Europe depended upon an immediate and definite disposition of the reparations question.

Mr. Schwab spent two months in Germany, France and Belgium. "I visited my old friends, the Krupps, the munition makers," he said. "What I saw astounded me. The big plants, which employed 110,000 persons when I last was there, were reduced to a force of 14,000. Other industries were operating in proportion."

HE JUST HAD TO ACT.

DISASTROUS FIRE RAGING IN COAL MINE

Whole Coal Field Around Haynes, N. D., Will Be Destroyed, It Is Feared

A disastrous lignite coal mine fire is raging in the mine at the Haynes Coal Mining Company at Haynes, N. D., near the South Dakota line, according to information received here today.

The fire is raging 80 feet underground, but smoke and gas issue above the earth for a distance of 75 to 100 feet in great clouds, it is said.

The fire is regarded as the most serious in the history of the Haynes coal field, which has been a source of coal for the state of North Dakota, and a section of school land just south, belonging to the state of North Dakota, declared to have half a million dollars of underground coal.

J. P. Mellon, state mine inspector, is on the ground.

PIONEERS FROLIC HERE AT ANNUAL GATHERING OF COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Tribute Paid to the Founders of the County and the State—Officers Chosen to Head Association for the Next Year

Burleigh county pioneers celebrated with all the vigor of the Northwestern frontier of bygone days last night. One hundred and fifty-four people—pioneers of 25 years residence in Burleigh county and members of their families, young and old—gathered for the annual meeting in the dining room of the Grand Pacific hotel. A celebration which included a fine tribute to the founders of Burleigh county, and excellent speeches and fine music, entertained the guests from 8:30 p. m. until 1 a. m.

The gathering was one of the largest the Burleigh County Pioneers' association has had. A note of pride in the past and optimism for the future of the county and North Dakota ruled the gathering. The solidarity of the community was emphasized. And the pioneers proved that the music of a modern orchestra was as tuneful and pleasing to them as the more sedate music of a quarter of a century or more ago.

AGED 90

Henry Reade, first vice-president, called the association to order in the absence of E. A. Williams, president. Officers were elected as follows:

President—W. A. Palmer.
1st vice-president—P. E. Byrne.
3rd vice-president—Mrs. D. J. McGillicuddy.

Treasurer—Mrs. Lucinda Logan.
Secretary—Mrs. Mary McLean.
Historian—P. E. Byrne.

Attorney-General George Shafer, a native of North Dakota and son of a pioneer of McKenzie county, was the speaker of the evening. He reviewed the high lights of the history of Dakota Territory and North Dakota, traced the efforts of the pioneers to build a state out of the wilderness and paid a tribute to their foresight and fortitude. He congratulated the Burleigh county pioneers on maintaining the organization, to preserve the great traditions and memories of the past and to teach state loyalty and appreciation.

Fine Musical Program

An excellent musical program was rendered at various times during the evening. The first song of the evening was "Here's to the Seventies," the official song of the organization, which was sung by all present with Henry Halverson leading. A quartet composed of Mrs. John A. Larson, Mrs. George Humphries, Mrs. Halverson and Mr. Humphries sang. Mrs. Arthur Bauer played piano solo and furnished the accompaniment for the singers. After lunch Mrs. V. C. LaRose and Miss Florence Connolly of Mandan sang solos. Miss Connolly is the daughter of Louis Connolly, one of the real pioneers, whose homestead, Mr. Reade said, was on the site of the Grand Pacific Hotel.

Officers Report
Reports were given by the various officers. Mrs. Falconer reading the minutes of the celebration held two years ago and the treasurer's report of Mrs. Logan, which showed a balance in the treasury. Mrs. Florence Davis, historian, recalled the valuable contributions made at the meeting two years ago when she was president for the first time related some stories of the olden days. She urged careful preservation of the records. Mrs. Edith Winchester gave the report of the resolutions committee. A dozen pioneers, many of them from the country, were called upon by Mr. Reade for short talks. The program was interspersed with the serving of lunch, and following the conclusion of the program dancing and cards were enjoyed.

LA FOLLETTE SLATE FILED FOR PRIMARY

WON'T GO ON BALLOT
Senator R. M. La Follette directed the secretary of states of Valley City, N. D., to place his name in nomination on the presidential primary ballot, March 18. A telegram from Washington authorized the secretary of state to withdraw his name and directed that such action be taken.

The answer of the LaFollette for President organization in North Dakota to the suggestions advanced by Senator Lynn F. Frazier and Representative J. H. Sinclair that LaFollette's name be withdrawn from the March 18 primary was the filing last yesterday with the Secretary of State of petitions for the LaFollette slate of candidates for national committee, delegates to the Republican national convention and presidential electors. R. A. Kinzer of Valley City, who filed the petitions, is the candidate for national committee. He was accompanied by P. O. Williams of this city in presenting the petitions to the Secretary of State.

The petitions bore variously 1,500 to 2,800 names, according to those presenting them, which was ample in each case.

Can Withdraw
Secretary of State Thomas Hall, asked concerning dispatch from Fargo that he held Senator LaFollette could not withdraw from March 18 presidential primary said:

"If Senator LaFollette sends a telegram asking his name to be withdrawn and the signature is verified his name will be withdrawn. Senator Frazier or any other individual cannot do it. The LaFollette petitions are signed by something like 4,000 people, and all of the 1,600 would have to ask his withdrawal to make it effective, unless he himself asks his withdrawal."

The time limit for withdrawals, is March 1.

Four years ago Judge C. J. Fisk of Valley City was permitted to withdraw as a candidate for delegate to the Democratic national convention after his name had been filed with a sufficient number of petitions.

N. P. Officials Are Entertained

J. G. Woodworth, vice-president of the Northern Pacific railroad; D. F. Lyons, general solicitor; Henry Blakeley, freight traffic manager; J. G. FIFTY WORKMEN ENGAGED HERE IN COMPLETING NEW MEMORIAL HALL

Approximately 50 workmen are at work now completing the interior of the Liberty Memorial Building on the North Dakota state capitol grounds. The goal for completion of the half-million dollar building has been set for June 1 by the state board of administration, but it is felt now that the building will be ready for occupancy before that time.

Carpenters, painters, terrazzo floor and marble workers, plumbers, electricians and book stack erectors are all at work on the building.

When completed the building will be occupied by the supreme court, adjutant-general, state libraries, state historical society and other departments if there is sufficient room.

Senator Dill Says He Was Go-Between for Messages from Edward B. McLean

TELEGRAMS ARE READ

Exchange of Messages From Palm Beach Is Read Before Oil Committee

Washington, Feb. 28.—(By the A. P.)—A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney-general in the Wilson administration, will be called before the senate oil committee.

The committee so determined today before it resumed the reading of additional telegrams sent to Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, at Palm Beach concerning the oil inquiry. Senator Dill, Democrat of Washington, insisted that Palmer should be called saying that he had been the "go-between" in the delivery of McLean's messages to the committee.

In telegrams read today John Major, a McLean employee here, reported to McLean that he was "busy with Underwood, Curtis and Zev." "Zev" was understood by committee members to refer to J. W. Zevoley, personal counsel for Harry F. Sinclair.

Ira Bennett, editor of the Post, telegraphed McLean on January 3 that he and Major saw "Curtis" who promised to see "Lenroot."

"Curtis" advised us "the telegram said, 'to see Underwood. We saw Underwood who promised to speak to Walsh but he hinted that it would not do any good.'"

Identification Not Given
In placing the telegrams in the record the committee members made no announcement of identification of the persons referred to, leaving the public to draw its own conclusions. A telegram signed "Johns" sent to McLean said "Willis" saw "party" this morning.

"Willis," reported party in friendly mood, "the message said, adding 'Harry is out of city.'"

"Before proceeding," interrupted Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, "I desire to say that Senator Underwood called a few moments ago on the telephone and said he had read something in the newspapers this morning that he had endeavored to dissuade me from my purpose to subject Mr. McLean to examination, a conclusion drawn from some of the telegrams read yesterday."

"Senator Underwood never attempted to influence my conduct in this matter in any way. I have to recollect of Senator Underwood speaking to me on the subject except that one morning in the senate chamber he asked me if I had any objection to having inserted in the congressional record a letter to me by Mr. Palmer and I said I had not."

McLean Given Up
"Senator Underwood in his conversation with me this morning said further that at the request of Mr. Bennett he had said something to me about whether we were going to ask the appearance of Mr. McLean and I told him that it had already been arranged that I was going to Palm Beach and take the testimony of Mr. McLean."

"Senator Underwood having said that that conversation took place, I suppose it did but I have no recollection of it."

Resuming its reading the committee heard the text of a telegram sent by McLean to Palm Beach on Christmas Day informing Major he had a tip he would be called in the inquiry and ordering that Palmer be asked to represent him.

On Dec. 26 McLean instructed Major to tell Wilson J. Lambert, his attorney, that he had asked Palmer to see the oil committee. In another message McLean instructed Major to keep "all my wires in your possession." On Dec. 26 McLean sent a telegram to E. W. Starling (a secret service man at the White House) asking him to send this telegram to "Wilkins" at Hopkinsville, Kentucky: "Leave at once for Palm Beach. E. B. McLean." Hopkinsville is Starling's home town. Later Major wired McLean that "Wilkins" is in full possession of the matter."

Asked Code Be Secret
The same message said Charles Berhans was leaving Washington for Palm Beach that night and that "the duck" would leave later. "My advice is," the message added, "not to acquaint latter party (the duck) with our code system." Bennett wired McLean on January 29 that he had seen "principal" and delivered message; that there would be no reckoning of boat and no resignations; and that "he expects reaction from unwarranted political attacks." E. S. Rochester, confidential adviser to Attorney-General Daugherty telegraphed McLean on Jan. 16 that the oil committee was investigating whether McLean had $100,000 in banks at the time he claimed he gave A. B. Fall checks for that sum. The Rochester message was a night letter and ended with the statement, "I thought you should be informed." Rochester was formerly managing-editor of the Washington Post.

McLean telegraphed to Major on December 27 to tell Palmer that (Continued on page 3)

MANY DAKOTA PEOPLE PRAISE TANLAC HIGHLY

One of the outstanding features of the success of TANLAC, the World's Greatest Tonic, is the number of persons who have voluntarily testified in its favor. Over 100,000 persons have publicly stated that TANLAC has helped them overcome stomach trouble, rheumatism, nervousness, palpitation, heartburn, sleeplessness, loss of weight and appetite and other ailments which have their origin in a weakened stomach and digestive system. Many ailments have their origin in the stomach and true strength and rehabilitation can be gotten only by correcting stomach disorders and putting the digestive system in perfect condition. TANLAC soothes and builds up disordered stomachs so that they can properly function, thus enabling the system to be built up as Nature intended it should.

There are eight ingredients in TANLAC, all derived from roots, herbs and barks. This tonic is purely vegetable and does not contain any ingredient that will bring on lax after effects. Old and young alike can safely take TANLAC with no fear of breaking down the system from harmful drugs.

Hundreds of persons in North and South Dakota have taken TANLAC and have pronounced it the greatest reconstructive tonic on the market. They have freely given their statements, telling how TANLAC helped them improve their health. Here are extracts from a few statements in the files of the TANLAC company:

Tanlac is Standby
James A. ("Dad") Hobart, 71 Sixth Ave. N. Fargo, night secretary of the Fargo Y. M. C. A.: "TANLAC has been my faithful standby now for 4 or 5 years. During this time I have used it off and on for stomach trouble and to keep up my appetite, strength and energy, and it never fails to make me eat hearty, sleep right and feel fit for my work. I'm strong for it.

Mrs. E. Shinkle, 40 Montana Ave., Huron: "My stomach had troubled me for years and I had no appetite at all. About all I lived on was a little milk, soup and crackers. After taking TANLAC, I was eating everything I wanted and every sign of indigestion had left me. I have enjoyed splendid health ever since but if I should ever need medicine again I would get TANLAC."

L. L. Kester, 215 Ninth Ave. N., Aberdeen: "What it takes to keep a man built up and feeling right, TANLAC certainly has it. I have taken TANLAC for several years when I felt the need of a tonic, especially in the spring, and it always makes me eat good, sleep good, feel good and work good. TANLAC never disappoints me."

"A Friend in Need"
Mrs. Anna Peterson, 300 Thirteenth St., Bismarck: "I had been sickly ever since I was 12 years old and when I first took TANLAC two years ago I was dreadfully weak and my suffering from indigestion, dizziness, backaches and headaches was awful. TANLAC gave me complete relief and built me up wonderfully. Whenever I need medicine, I always turn to TANLAC. I now feel better than in years. TANLAC has certainly been a 'friend in need' to me."

W. Mohr, 302 W. 4th St. Sioux Falls: "My children were puny and run-down. They weren't eating right and hadn't the life and energy they should have had. TANLAC did even more for them than we had thought it would. It braced their appetites, right up, put them to eating hearty and made them as lively as they ever were. I can speak of TANLAC only in the highest terms."

TANLAC is for sale by all good druggists. Accept No Substitute. Over 40 MILLION Bottles sold.

35 PCT. LAW EXAGGERATED

Martin Says Straight Drastic Cut Not Proposed

Fargo, Feb. 28.—It is not the intention of the officials of the North Dakota Tax association to initiate a law limiting the taxing powers of North Dakota tax levying bodies to a decrease as great as 35 percent of previous levies, asserted A. L. Martin of Sentinel Butte, N. D., in Fargo.

The officials of the taxing association have until March 27 to circulate petitions for the initiated measure, and they expect to have it drafted and ready for circulation in a short time.

Mr. Martin is here to confer with other members of the tax association as to the provisions of the law.

"It has been suggested that we use the 1923 levy as the basis and provide for the initiated measure that taxing bodies be held to a reduction of 25 percent under the 1922 levy, but that any taxing district could change this by popular vote to a reduction of 10 percent under the 1922 levy," said Mr. Martin.

"In other words, we would limit the amount that could be levied to 75 percent of the 1922 levy, but provide that the people of the different taxing districts could increase this to 90 percent if they so desired."

"It has never been the intention of the taxing association to cripple the schools or any of our state institutions, but we do emphatically believe that some curb must be put on the ever mounting tax burden in North Dakota and we believe the people of the whole state want some action taken to limit the public expenditures."

WILL BE ASKED TO TELL STORY OF TELEGRAMS

Francis H. McAdoo "for his father, William G. McAdoo" has been my personal attorney for seven years.

At the conclusion of the reading of the telegram Carl C. Schuyler, a Denver attorney, was called to the stand.

NOT HIM, SAYS WILLIS
Washington, Feb. 28.—Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio, issued a formal statement today declaring he had no idea who was referred to in telegrams placed before the oil committee saying that "Willis" was concerning himself in the oil inquiry on behalf of Edward B. McLean.

"I have been handed what purports to be copies of two telegrams sent by John or John to Edward B. McLean at John Beach, Fla. in which telegraphic reference is made to a man named Willis," said the Senator.

"So far as I can recall I do not know John or John. I haven't the slightest idea as to what either of the telegrams refer."

WOULD SEE TAX RETURNS

Washington, Feb. 14.—Inquiry by the oil committee into the income tax returns of E. L. Dohney and Harry F. Sinclair and their oil companies were proposed in a resolution today by Senator McKeller, Democrat, Tennessee. Immediate adoption was blocked by Senator Moses, New Hampshire, who said he desired to include other names in the resolution.

Whether this analogy will follow in the case of the big game Roberts has now been set to talk, remains to be seen.

However, in this case, he may regard the quarry as a bear. And while Roberts often passes up the moose, he usually hunts the bear.

A powerfully built, muscular man of over six feet, Roberts conveys an impression of limitless energy and driving force.

Strong features, widely spaced eyes, wide mouth, the long nose of an inquisitor and a bit of bulldog about the square lines of his jaw. Hair a trifle gray about the temples. A brisk, alert manner and an aura of physical vigor and mental keenness.

Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, who recommended Roberts to President Coolidge, describes Roberts as "a fighting, Wisloman." Although of Welsh descent, Roberts was born in Germantown, a suburb of Philadelphia, 48 years ago. His father, Josephus Roberts, now 88, still lives in the house where "Owie" as he calls his son, was born.

When the Roberts education had progressed to the point where a decision as to his life's work was decided, his father suggested law. Owen demurred.

Honesty Put First
"Lawyers aren't honest," he declared. "I want to teach school."

The matter finally was put to Dr. William Kershaw, headmaster of Germantown Academy.

"Can I be lawyer and be honest?" Owen asked.

"My boy," Kershaw replied, "you can be honest at anything."

So the die was cast for the law. He received his degree in law from Pennsylvania University, where Senator Pepper was one of his instructors.

After graduation he was for a time an instructor in the law school following his original bent to be a teacher. Soon, however, he gave this up to enter the practice of law.

Beginning as an assistant district attorney in Philadelphia, he built up a civil practice which for the past 10 years has kept him in court, as a trial lawyer, almost continuously. To handle the necessary preparation and office work of his practice has required working full-time for from 12 to 16 hours a day.

Cornetist, Too
Roberts doesn't play golf. He doesn't drive a speedy roadster. He doesn't dance. For 11 months of each year his law practice is his life, and he gives himself to it without reserve.

The other month he specifically sets aside for building up his physical reserve in the Maine woods—camping, hunting, fishing, tramping, endless miles.

Roberts is married and has one daughter, a debutante of this season. His one avocation has been as a cornetist, which instrument he used to play in the Third Baptist Church. Later, however, he joined the Episcopal church and gave up tooting even his own horn.

"Roberts," his acquaintances here maintain, "will get down to brass tacks in this investigation."

"He is an earnest, careful, energetic lawyer, tireless, relentless, effective. He will supplement Senator Pomeroy's qualifications, making a good-working team that ought to produce the maximum results for their clients, the American people."

The resolution adopted follows: We, as members of the Democratic Central Committee of Richland County, North Dakota, called into session by our county chairman, believe that the great party of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson is to be again called into power, to correct the corruption and graft now deeply seated in the national capital, and believing that it is highly important that our party be strengthened on every hand.

New German Oil Formula Rubs Out Rheumatic Pains

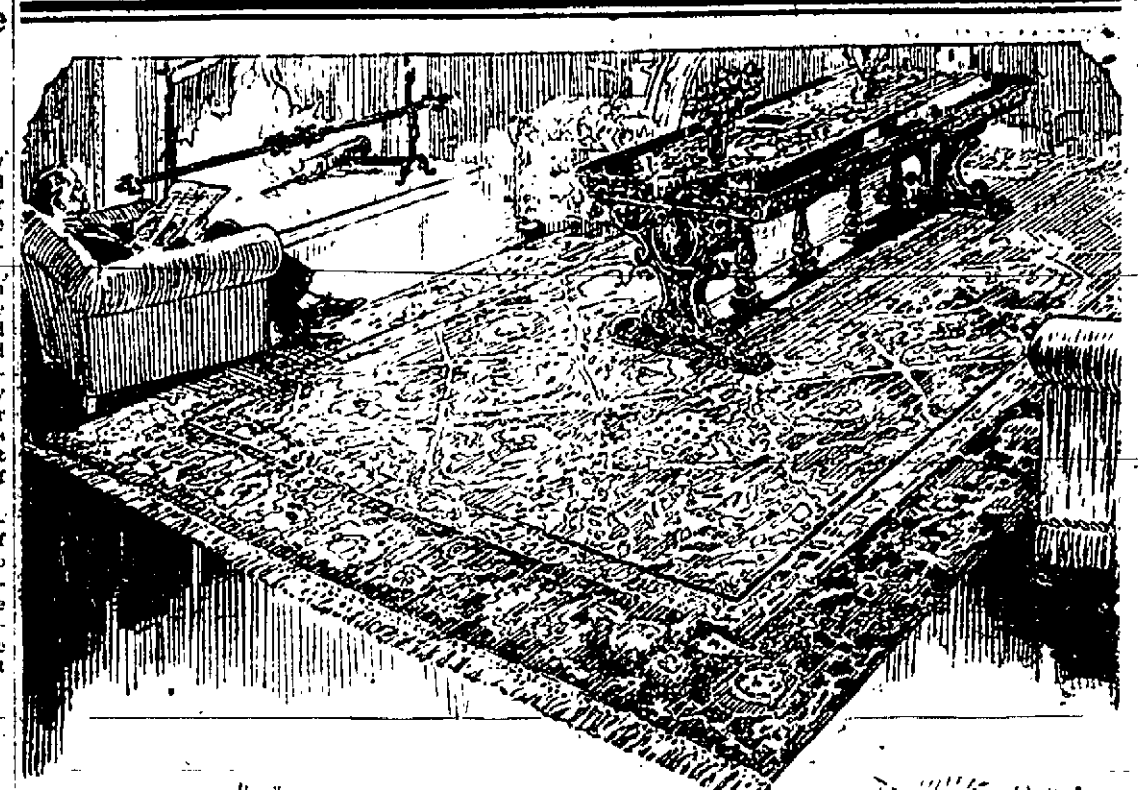

Remarkable discovery promises quick, soothing relief for rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and neuritis sufferers.

German Chemistry that has given to the world the boon of Aspirin for the relief of headache pain, and Novocain for painless dentistry, has now come forward with another scientific discovery that promises to make nerve, joint and muscular pains a thing of the past for thousands who have suffered terrible tortures.

A new combination of certain oils has been discovered which produces a clear amber liquid that affords immediate relief from pain in many instances. It is so penetrating that it disappears in a few seconds, so that it must be entirely absorbed by the body tissue. Even in the most advanced and stubborn cases the use of this remarkable oil has shown astonishing improvement at once in many cases. Tired muscles regain life, creaking joints with the pain all gone become supple, the nerves are quickly soothed and the annoying twinges cease.

Rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and neuritis are due to internal infections which throw off poisons. These poisons are carried by the blood to the nerve tissue where they inflame and irritate the nerve sheath. The New German Oil is designed to neutralize these pain-causing poisons, bringing almost instant soothing relief.

So astonishing have been the results from the use of this oil that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense it to rheumatic, gout, neuralgia and neuritis sufferers on the basis of a positive written guarantee, signed by themselves, to return the full purchase price of the first bottle if the pains are not wonderfully relieved. All sufferers should take advantage of this liberal offer. Unless you get relief from the very first bottle your druggist will return your money. It is called Rubler Oil, and can be had at most good druggists, such as Lenhart Drug Co., J. Breslow, Bart Finney.

MANY DAKOTA PEOPLE PRAISE TANLAC HIGHLY

One of the outstanding features of the success of TANLAC, the World's Greatest Tonic, is the number of persons who have voluntarily testified in its favor. Over 100,000 persons have publicly stated that TANLAC has helped them overcome stomach trouble, rheumatism, nervousness, palpitation, heartburn, sleeplessness, loss of weight and appetite and other ailments which have their origin in a weakened stomach and digestive system. Many ailments have their origin in the stomach and true strength and rehabilitation can be gotten only by correcting stomach disorders and putting the digestive system in perfect condition. TANLAC soothes and builds up disordered stomachs so that they can properly function, thus enabling the system to be built up as Nature intended it should.

There are eight ingredients in TANLAC, all derived from roots, barks and herbs. This tonic is purely vegetable and does not contain any ingredient that will bring on lag after effects. Old and young alike can safely take TANLAC with no fear of breaking down the system from harmful drugs.

Hundreds of persons in North and South Dakota have taken TANLAC and have pronounced it the greatest reconstructive tonic on the market. They have freely given their statements, telling how TANLAC helped them improve their health. Here are extracts from a few statements in the files of the TANLAC company:

Tanlac is Standby
James A. ("Dad") Hohart, 71 Sixth Ave. N., Fargo, night secretary of the Fargo Y. M. C. A.: "TANLAC has been my faithful standby now for 4 or 5 years. During this time I have used it off and on for stomach trouble and to keep up my appetite, strength and energy, and it never fails to make me eat hearty, sleep right and feel fit for my work. I'm strong for it."

Mrs. E. Shinkle, 40 Montana Ave., Huron: "My stomach had troubled me for years and I had no appetite at all. About all I lived on was a little milk, soup and crackers. After taking TANLAC, I was eating everything I wanted and every sign of indigestion had left me. I have enjoyed splendid health ever since but if I should ever need medicine again I would get TANLAC."

"A Friend in Need"
L. L. Kester, 215 Ninth Ave. N., Aberdeen: "What it takes to keep a man built up and feeling right, TANLAC certainly has it. I have taken TANLAC for several years when I felt the need of a tonic, especially in the spring, and it always makes me eat good, sleep good, feel good and work good. TANLAC never disappoints me."

"I Need It"
Mrs. Anna Peterson, 300 Thirteenth St., Bismarck: "I had been sickly ever since I was 12 years old and when I first took TANLAC two years ago I was dreadfully weak and my suffering from indigestion, dizziness, backaches and headaches was awful. TANLAC gave me complete relief and built me up wonderfully. Whenever I need medicine, I always turn to TANLAC. I now feel better than in years. TANLAC has certainly been a 'friend in need' to me."

W. Mohr, 302 W. 4th St. Sioux Falls: "My children were puny and run-down. They weren't eating right and built me up wonderfully. Whenever I need medicine, I always turn to TANLAC. I now feel better than in years. TANLAC has certainly been a 'friend in need' to me."

TANLAC is for sale by all good druggists. Accept No Substitute. Over 40 MILLION Bottles sold.

35 PCT. LAW EXAGGERATED

Martin Says Straight Drastic Cut Not Proposed

Fargo, Feb. 28.—It is not the intention of the officials of the North Dakota Tax association to initiate a law limiting the taxing powers of North Dakota tax levying bodies to a decrease as great as 35 percent of previous levies, declared Al. L. Martin of Sentinel Butte, N. D., in Fargo.

The officials of the taxing association have until March 27 to circulate petitions for the initiated measure, and they expect to have it drafted and ready for circulation in a short time.

Mr. Martin is here to confer with other members of the tax association as to the provisions of the law. "It has been suggested that we use the 1922 levy as the basis and provide in the initiated measure that taxing bodies be held to a reduction of 25 percent under the 1922 levy, but that any taxing district could change this by popular vote to a reduction of 10 percent under the 1922 levy," said Mr. Martin.

"In other words, we would limit the amount that could be levied to 75 percent of the 1922 levy, but provide that the people of the different taxing districts could increase this to 90 percent if they so desired."

"It has never been the intention of the taxing association to cripple the schools or any of our state institutions. But we do emphatically believe that some curb must be put on the ever mounting tax burden in North Dakota and we believe the people of the whole state want some action taken to limit the public expenditures."

WILL BE ASKED TO TELL STORY OF TELEGRAMS

Francis H. McAdoo "for his father, William G. McAdoo" has been my personal attorney for seven years. At the conclusion of the reading of the telegrams Carl C. Schuyler, a Denver attorney, was called to the stand.

NOT HIM, SAYS WILLIS
Washington, Feb. 28.—Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio, issued a formal statement today declaring he had no idea who was referred to in telegrams placed before the oil committee saying that "Willis" was concerning himself in the oil inquiry on behalf of Edward B. McLean.

He had been handed what purports to be copies of two telegrams sent by John or John to Edward B. McLean at Palm Beach, Fla., in which telegraphic reference is made to a man named Willis. "So far as I can recall I do not know John or John. I haven't the slightest idea as to what either of the telegrams refer."

WOULD SEE TAX RETURNS

Washington, Feb. 14.—Inquiry by the oil committee into the income tax returns of E. L. Dohney and Larry F. Sinclair and their oil companies were proposed in a resolution today by Senator McKeller, Democrat, Tennessee. Immediate adoption was blocked by Senator Moses, New Hampshire, who said he desired to include other names in the resolution.

Owen J. Roberts Experienced Stalker of Big Game

The forests, only to refuse to shoot when he has his quarry cornered.

Six Feet of Energy
Whether this analogy will follow in the case of the big game Roberts has now been set to stalk, remains to be seen.

However, in this case, he may regard the quarry as a bear. And while Roberts often passes up the moose, he usually lands the bear.

A powerfully-built, muscular man of over six feet, Roberts conveys an impression of limitless energy and driving force.

Strong features, widely spaced eyes, wide mouth, the long nose of an inquisitor and a bit of bulldog about the square lines of his jaw. Hair a springy gray about the temples. A brisk, alert manner and an aura of physical vigor and mental keenness. Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, who recommended Roberts to President Coolidge, describes Roberts as "a fighting Welshman." Although of Welsh descent, Roberts was born in Germantown, a suburb of Philadelphia, 48 years ago. His father, Josephus Roberts, now 88, still lives in the house where "Owen" as he calls his son, was born.

When the Roberts education had progressed to the point where a decision as to his life's work was desirable, his father suggested law. Owen demurred.

Honesty Put First
"Lawyers aren't honest," he declared. "I want to teach school." The matter finally was put to Dr. William Kershaw, headmaster of Germantown Academy.

"Can I be a lawyer and be honest?" Owen asked.

"My boy," Kershaw replied, "you can be honest at anything."

So that he went to teach for the law. He received his degree in law from Pennsylvania University, where Senator Pepper was one of his instructors.

After graduation he was for a time an instructor in the law school—following, his original bent to be a teacher. Soon, however, he gave this up to enter the practice of law.

Beginning as an assistant district attorney in Philadelphia, he built up a civil practice which for the past 10 years has kept him in court, as a trial lawyer, almost continuously. To handle the necessary preparation and office work of his practice has required working full-time for from 12 to 16 hours a day.

Cornetist, Too
Roberts doesn't play golf. He doesn't drive a speedy roadster. He doesn't dance. For 11 months of each year his law practice is his life, and he gives himself to it without reserve.

The other month he specifically sets aside for building up his physical reserve in the Maine woods—camping, hunting, fishing, tramping endless miles.

Roberts is married and has one daughter, a debutante of this season. His one avocation has been as a cornetist, which instrument he used to play in the Third Baptist Church. Later, however, he joined the Episcopal church and gave up tooting even his own horn.

"Roberts," his acquaintances here maintain, "will get down to brass tacks in this investigation."

"He is an earnest, careful, energetic lawyer, tireless, relentless, effective. He will supplement Senator Pomeroy's qualifications, making a good-working team that ought to produce the maximum results for their clients—the American people."

FOR MURPHY

The Wahpeton Globe says: At a meeting of prominent members of the Richland County Democratic Central Committee held here, resolutions were adopted endorsing the candidacy of R. B. Murphy of Bismarck for national committeeman. No other action was taken at this meeting but it was decided that to create interest, meetings will be held frequently to which all interested in the return to power of a democratic administration, will be invited to attend.

H. G. Burrill was elected secretary of the county committee.

The resolution adopted follows: We, as members of the Democratic Central Committee of Richland County, North Dakota, called into session by our county chairman, believe that the great party of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson is to be again called into power, to correct the corruption and craft now deeply seated in the national capital, and believing that it is highly important that our party be strengthened on every hand.

Be it Resolved, that this meeting endorse and recommend to the Democratic voters of Richland County, the Hon. R. B. Murphy of Bismarck, for national committeeman. Careful consideration has convinced the members of this committee that he can best serve his party in that capacity.

New German Oil Formula Rubs Out Rheumatic Pains

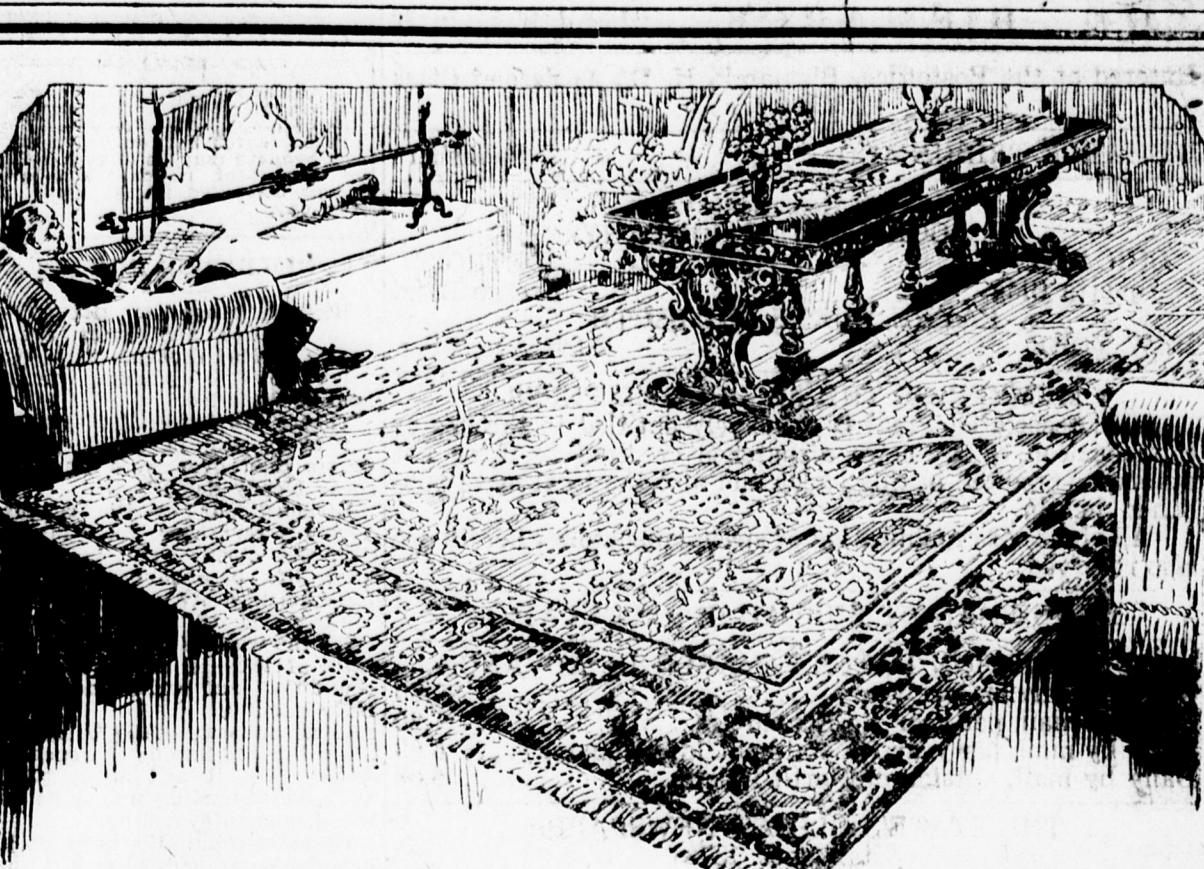

Remarkable discovery promises quick, soothing relief for rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and neuritis sufferers.

German Chemistry that has given to the world the boon of Aspirin for the relief of headache pain, and Novocain for painless dentistry, has now come forward with another scientific discovery that promises to make nerve, joint and muscular pains a thing of the past for thousands who have suffered terrible tortures.

A new combination of certain oils has been discovered which produces a clear amber liquid that affords immediate relief from pain in many instances. It is so penetrating that it disappears within a few seconds, so that it must be entirely absorbed by the body tissue. Even in the most advanced and stubborn cases the use of this remarkable oil has shown astonishing improvement at once in many cases. Tired muscles regain life, creaking joints with the pain all gone become supple, the nerves are quickly soothed and the annoying twinges cease.

Rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and neuritis are due to internal infections which throw off poisons. These poisons carried by the blood to the nerve tissue, cause inflammation and irritate the nerve sheath. The New German Oil is designed to neutralize these pain-causing poisons, bringing almost instant soothing relief.

So astonishing have been the results from this oil that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense it to rheumatic, gout, neuralgia and neuritis sufferers in this city with a positive written guarantee, signed by themselves, to return the full purchase price of the first bottle if the pain is not wonderfully relieved. All sufferers should take advantage of this liberal offer. Unless you get relief from the very first bottle your druggist will return your money. It is called Buhler Oil, and can be had at most good druggists, such as Lombard Drug Co., J. Breslow, Burt Finney.

IF YOUR RADIO IS STAGECOACH SET

Rodger Dolan writes: "In the last month I've heard the latest in radio—neutrodyne and super-sets and all the other hifalutin' sets. It strikes me that radio is becoming too perfect and certain for real enjoyment.

"My set is antiquated, a stagecoach. I've tinkered with it and changed it so much that I don't think the best radio engineer living could tell me what sort of a set I have. But I wouldn't trade this old stagecoach for all the super-sets in the universe.

"A lot of people prefer the sets where, by logging and adjusting dials at certain numerals, they can get any station they want, at almost any time, without a lot of preliminary tuning. That pleases them, maybe because it makes them feel they have mastered the mystery of the air.

"But not for me! I prefer my old set that makes me do a lot of fishing to get anything at all. I enjoy the thrill of victory when delicate adjustments finally bring in a clear concert. And there's another thrill, of suspense, waiting for the song or orchestra to subside and then the revelation of whether the unknown station is across the continent or over in the next county."

Radio has two classes of followers—masters and fishermen. One gets the sense of power and dominion that comes with exact, certain results. The other is a gambler, subject to the laws of chance, as surely as the angler casting a fly or plug into unknown waters.

Fishing would be a dull pastime if we got a strike every time we tossed a baited line into the river or lake. There's no fishing thrill like the strike that comes after hours without any results at all. What sportsman wants to know, in advance, the size of fish he has hooked? Land him first, then learn.

Often all of us wish we could know the future—read the mysterious veil and learn what's in store for us. But how dumb and unexciting life would be if the future were not unknown, uncertain and mysterious in its possibilities!

Providence is kindly to us in veiling the future. There's an adventurous thrill and alluring element of gambling when we plod ahead into the unknown.

BOUNDARY ROW

For 400 years two Italian villages have been arguing about a boundary line between the two. After four centuries, they agree to turn the deadlocked dispute over to an arbitration board and accept its decision as final.

Magnify this dispute and you have the source of many wars between nations. It should be just as easy for nations to arbitrate before war as for the two villages. And nations would, if their politicians weren't given too much power. "Diplomat" is just a camouflage name for international politician.

YOUR VALUE?

A Texas professor figures out that materials in a human body could be bought at the drugstore for 98 cents. The body, he estimates, contains enough iron to make a nail, enough water to wash a pair of blankets, and sufficient lime to whitewash a small building.

These materials, however, are not the real PERSON. The body is to the spirit or soul what the auto is to its driver.

There is, by the way, nothing new in the professor's discovery. The same story appears every three years. It's part of the system of life—repetition of old stuff, over and over.

NEW BUSINESS

A common fault in business organizations is giving too much attention to getting new business and not enough attention to holding the old customers.

That's why many a concern, which imagines it is making progress, is really standing still. Similarly, many an individual is so interested in trying to get the job of the fellow on the next ladder rung above him that he forgets the chap below who is after his scalp. If the present job is handled well, the future will take care of itself automatically.

WOULD LIVE FOREVER

Mary Pickford says she wishes Edison could find a way to make "Mary and Doug" live forever. They will live forever, of course, like all the rest of us, but not here on earth.

After 100 years at most, Mary would change her mind. Life becomes rather tiresome as we near the end of it all. Most old people are ready to pass on, after 90. The world's a stage and life is a steady repetition of the same old show. Death intervenes, kindly, and takes us on to—what?

RECKLESS DRIVERS

Take reckless drivers' autos away from them. This is being urged by many highway traffic experts. They figure that only one driver in 20 is reckless. But even that's a menace. Most reckless drivers who get into court are chronic "repeaters," not first offenders.

Mexico is backward, but some of its cities have sense enough to jail the car of a speeder, for six months or more. Germany tackles the problem another way, arresting victims for being reckless and stupid enough to get run over.

STIMULANT

Hudson Maxim started an argument when he declared that the Volstead act prohibited tea and coffee. In a cup of black coffee there is as much as two grains of caffeine, in tea there's tannin, another drug. Both of these are more stimulating than a similar amount of beer. But they aren't alcoholic.

In the old days black coffee was the bar-fly's favorite remedy for a hang-over.

Denmark's queen went skating and fell through the ice. That's what is rotten in Denmark, the ice.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of the Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

MISLEADING HISTORY

History hangs its ribbons on great battles and great events. But Charles Dickens was right when he said, standing on the field of Waterloo:

"There are fiercer battles fought out every day in simple human hearts than ever were won upon these bloody fields."

Dickens, one of the soundest novelists that ever wrote in English, was chiefly great because he knew life, because he understood the human heart.

The world will listen to and preserve the work of men who know a little of life—as much as anyone can know—and write understandingly about it.

And no one can really be said to know life and no one can speak or write about it and about people with understanding unless he has broad, human sympathy.

He must make allowance for his neighbor's misdoings, or what appear to be his neighbor's misdoings. He must learn to concede the possibility of sincerity on the part of the other fellow.

He must learn to do that most uncommon of all things—he must put himself in the other fellow's place, temperament and all, and try to think of things as the other fellow must think of them.

WHAT'S THE USERS?

The program of aerial exploits outlined by the United States for this year gives many a thrill of adventure and expectancy, but others are raising the old cry that it is foolish for men to risk their lives flying to the North Pole or flying around the world.

What will we do with all this? What will we do with the North Pole if the Shennandoah reaches it? ask the standbys and the what's the users of America.

It is a shame to make men go to the Shennandoah to the North Pole; it is a shame to force men to fly around the world, in the viewpoint of thousands, who fear that the army men and the navy men will not come back.

Oh, well, if horses always held back against the backstraps instead of pulling at the traces the wagoners would never have got ahead. What was the use of Columbus' trying to find a new route to India; wasn't the old route good enough? What was the use ever, anywhere, of doing something different, of trying something new, of seeking new lands and new ways?

Yet if these flights are dangerous, there are men who would volunteer to make them, glad to risk their lives for new achievements, to pave the way for greater progress, men who know that some of the greatest things in history are yet to come.

IN LISTS OF SIX

Picking the six most important words in the English language seems to be the great indoor sport just now.

College presidents and professors are submitting imposing lists, usually containing such words as loyalty, service, self-control, sincerity, knowledge and magnanimity.

Those, to our way of thinking are far from the most important. What about such words as yes, no, home, mother, God and humanity?

They certainly touch all our lives more intimately. But, for the matter of that, no list that anyone chooses is of much value to anyone else.

The value comes in setting down one's own. Words represent ideas, and the man who takes time to think out just what he has there set down pretty completely his philosophy of life and the things in life that he considers most important. —Milwaukee Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

On went the Twins through the hallway of the palace toward the throne room where sat their majesties, the giant king and queen of Beanstalk Land!

Everywhere the Twins went in their enormous seven-league boots, the same thing happened—servants and courtiers and ladies-in-waiting fled in dismay at their approach. Because the Twins were not to be seen at all and the boots appeared to be walking by themselves.

The cook fled, the pages fled, and the court jester fled, all of his bells, jingling like Santa's reindeer on Christmas Eve.

"What is the matter with everybody?" shouted the giant king angrily. "Has everybody gone crazy? Come back here, every one of you, and stand to your places at once!"

Just then the empty boots were approaching (at least he thought they were empty) and he knew he ought to shake, and he shivered all over until his tall crown threatened to roll off his head. And the queen did the same, shivered and shook, until her crown nearly fell off, too.

They would have run away as well as the others, but how could they—with long robes and trains and a few other things that would have tripped a circus actor in two seconds.

"Stop! What do you want?" cried the king shakily.

"Lots of things!" called out Nick as loudly as he could. Of course the king thought it was the boot talking.

"If you will only stop where you are," begged the king, "I will give you whatever you ask."

"So shall I!" declared the queen.

"Then," shouted Nick, take off your crowns and make the Twins king and queen of Beanstalk Land!

"Who?" asked the surprised king.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO PAULA PERIER

MY DEAR PAULA:

Received your wire this morning, but I am afraid I can do nothing for you. Of course I can understand that you want your baby very much, but you must also remember you voluntarily gave him away and you made no answer when the court asked for any relatives to appear and say why he should not be adopted by Jack and Leslie.

You probably know Jack better than I, but I know him in a different way and I know he has grown to love the boy very much. Besides, he knows it would break Leslie's heart to give him up now.

Once, my dear girl, you fought against Leslie for Jack and lost, and I am afraid you will lose again, even though both times Leslie has been totally unconscious, that anything was being done to him. With one was battling against her. With the bulwarks of respectability and right thrown up in front of her she could not lose.

You have grown to be a big woman, Paula. Big enough to forget this. You managed very well when you had to give up Jack's love. Is your mother love stronger than your love was for him or do you still want to hurt him as he has hurt you?

It's a great problem, my dear, and I do not feel at all able to advise you, an old bachelor like me. But I am very fond of you and of Jack, and I respect and regard Leslie more than any other woman on this earth. There! I'm telling you something I have never told anyone else, but I feel it true that John Alden Prescott got much more than he deserved when he was given the love of Leslie Hamilton and she became his wife.

I'm rather sorry you are going to Albany. Although, like every other two people, we think they have been able to keep their affairs from the world, you must know that your affair with Jack before his marriage to Leslie was common talk among the men about town, as well as among the young society matrons whose husbands had confided in them the more or less true details.

All these old stories will be revived. All the old scandal will get a fresh start. If Jack and Leslie go together to see your picture when you make your personal appearance, everybody will say Jack is trying to bluff it out. If either of them go alone, the people will say Jack was afraid to take Leslie to see the picture. If neither of them go near you, someone is sure to hazard the opinion that Jack and Leslie have quarreled over you and neither dare go. You can under no circumstance stop the gossip you have started.

I shall be much interested to know the outcome of it all. Above all else I hope and pray nothing will be said or done to hurt Jack's wife, Leslie. She has not only been sweet and kind to your child, Paula, but she has been perfectly innocent in the matter.

XXXI (Continued)
She looked as if about to lead a charge of cavalry, although, oddly enough, her full, sensuous mouth with its slightly protruding lower lip, was pouting. Beautiful she had never been; the large bony structure of her face was too unchangeable, her eyes too sharp and sardonic; but handsome certainly, and no doubt, for many years after she had stood for this portrait in the full insolence of her young womanhood. She retained not a trace of that hardness today. Her hands were skinnier, large veined, discolored by moth patches, and her large aquiline nose rose from her sunken cheeks like the beak of an old eagle—an indomitable old eagle. Many women of sixty-eight had worn far better, but looks need care, spurred by vanity, and she had a profound contempt for both. No doubt if she had made a few of the well known feminine concessions she would have looked at least ten years younger than her age, for she had never had a day's illness: eight lyings-in were not, in her case, to be counted as exceptions. No doubt, thought Claverling, as he turned to greet her, she had thought it quite enough to be imposing.

She certainly looked imposing tonight in spite of her old-fashioned corsets and her iron-gray hair arranged in flat rolls and puffs on the prelate top of her head, for although flesh had accumulated lumpily on her back, her shoulders were still unbowed, her head as haughtily poised as in her youth, and the long black velvet gown with yellow old point about the square neck (the neck itself covered, like the throat, with net), and falling over her hands, became her style if not the times.

"Well, Lee!" she said drily. "I suppose when you got my note you thought I had gone bug-house, as my fastidious granddaughter Janet would express it. But that is the way I felt and that is the way I feel at the present moment."

"Dear Lady Jane! Whatever it is, here I am to command, as you see. There is no engagement I wouldn't have broken—"

"You don't suppose they worry their little heads with analysis, do you? Somebody started the idea and the rest followed like sheep. No doubt it had its real origin in the young men who did the fighting and saw their comrades do the dying, and all the kudos carried off by the old men who ran no risks. They are very bitter. And women generally take their cues from men, little as they suspect it. However, whatever the cause, here it is, and what to do about it I've no more idea than you; but I should think it would be a good idea for Jim to take her abroad for a year."

"I don't see Jim giving up his clubs and sports, and tagging round the world after a flapper. He never took himself very seriously as a parent. . . . still, he is really alarmed. . . . Are you going to marry Marian Lawrence?"

"Do you think I'd engage myself to any one without telling you first of all?"

"Better not. Are you in love with her?"

"No."

"I'm told you were devoted to her at one time. That was one of the times when I saw little or nothing of you."

"I've been devoted to quite a number of girls, first and last, but there's really been nothing in it on either side. I know what you're driving at. Shoot."

"Yes, Jim said he told you. Well, I've changed my mind. Janet's a little fool, perhaps worse. Not half good enough for you and would devolve the life out of you before you got rid of her in self defense. Let her hoe her own row. How about that writing person, Gora Dwight, you and Din are always talking about?"

"Never been the ghost of a flirtation. She's all intellect and ambition. I enjoy going there for I'm almost as much at home with her as I am with you."

"Hat! Harmless. I hope she's as flattered as I am. There remains Anne Goodrich. She's handsome, true to her traditions in every way—Marian Lawrence is a busy unless I'm mistaken and I usually am—not she has talent and she has cultivated her mind. She will have a fortune and would make an admirable wife in every way for an ambitious and gifted man. More pliable than Marian, too. You're as tyrannical and conceited as all your sex and would never get along with any woman who wasn't clever enough to pretend to be the submissive while twisting you around her little finger. I rather favor Anne."

"You are a perfect dear, and if I were forty years younger I should marry you."

"You are a perfect dear, and if I were forty years younger I should marry you. However, we'll come to that later. I want to talk to you about that damnable little Janet first—we'll have to go in now."

When they were seated at a small table at one end of the immense dining room she turned to the butler and said sharply: "Get out, Hawkins, and stay out except when we can't get on without you."

And Hawkins, whom a cataclysm would not have ruffled after forty-five years in Mrs. Oglethorpe's service, vanished.

"Jim said he had a talk with you about Janet, and that you advised him to spank her," she said. "Well, he did."

"What?" Claverling gave a delighted grin. "I never believed he'd do it."

"Nor I. Thought his will had grown as flabby as his body. But when she stood up to him and with a cool insolence, which she may or may not have inherited from me, or which may be merely part and parcel of the new manner, and lunged in his face a good deal more than he knew already, and asked him what he was going to do about it, he turned her over his knee and took a hair brush to her."

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

(Established 1873)

IF YOUR RADIO IS STAGECOACH SET

Rodger Dolan writes: "In the last month I've heard the latest in radio—neutrodynes and super-sets and all the other hifalutin' sets. It strikes me that radio is becoming too perfected and certain for real enjoyment.

"My set is antiquated, a stagecoach. I've tinkered with it and changed it so much that I don't think the best radio engineer living could tell me what sort of a set I have. But I wouldn't trade this old stagecoach for all the super-sets in the universe.

"A lot of people prefer the sets where, by logging and adjusting dials at certain numerals, they can get any station they want, at almost any time, without a lot of preliminary tuning. That pleases them, maybe because it makes them feel they have mastered the mystery of the air.

"But not for me! I prefer my old set that makes me do a lot of fishing to get anything at all. I enjoy the thrill of victory when delicate adjustments finally bring in a clear concert. And there's another thrill, of suspense, waiting for the song or orchestra to subside and then the revelation of whether the unknown station is across the continent or over in the next county."

Radio has two classes of followers—masters and fishermen. One gets the sense of power and dominion that comes with exact, certain results. The other is a gambler, subject to the laws of chance, as surely as the angler casting a fly or plug into unknown waters.

Fishing would be a dull pastime if we got a strike every time we tossed a baited line into the river or lake. There's no fishing thrill like the strike that comes after hours without any results at all. What sportsman wants to know, in advance, the size of fish he has hooked? Land him first, then learn.

Often all of us wish we could know the future—read the mysterious veil and learn what's in store for us. But how dull and unexciting life would be if the future were not unknown, uncertain and mysterious in its possibilities!

Providence is kindly to us in veiling the future. There's an adventurous thrill and alluring element of gambling when we plod ahead into the unknown.

For 400 years two Italian villages have been arguing about a boundary line between the two. After four centuries, they agree to turn the deadlocked dispute over to an arbitration board and accept its decision as final.

Magnify this dispute and you have the source of many wars between nations. It should be just as easy for nations to arbitrate before war as for the two villages. And nations would, if their politicians weren't given too much power. "Diplomat" is just a camouflage name for international politician.

YOUR VALUE?

A Texas professor figures out that materials in a human body could be bought at the drugstore for 98 cents. The body, he estimates, contains enough iron to make a nail, enough water to wash a pair of blankets, and sufficient lime to whitewash a small building.

These materials, however, are not the real PERSON. The body is to the spirit or soul what the auto is to its driver.

There is, by the way, nothing new in the professor's discovery. The same story appears every three years. It's part of the system of life—repetition of old stuff, over and over.

NEW BUSINESS

A common fault in business organizations is giving too much attention to getting new business and not enough attention to holding the old customers.

That's why many a concern, which imagines it is making progress, is really standing still. Similarly, many an individual is so interested in trying to get the job of the fellow on the next ladder rung above him that he forgets the chap below who is after his scalp. If the present job is handled well, the future will take care of itself automatically.

WOULD LIVE FOREVER

Mary Pickford says she wishes Edison could find a way to make "Mary and Doug" live forever. They will live forever, of course, like all the rest of us, but not here on earth.

After 100 years at most, Mary would change her mind. Life becomes rather tiresome as we near the end of it all. Most old people are ready to pass on, after 90. The world's a stage and life is a steady repetition of the same old show. Death intervenes, kindly, and takes us on to—what?

RECKLESS DRIVERS

Take reckless drivers' autos away from them. This is being urged by many highway traffic experts. They figure that only one driver in 20 is reckless. But even that's a menace. Most reckless drivers who get into court are chronic "repeaters," not first offenders.

Mexico is backward, but some of its cities have sense enough to jail the car of a speeder, for six months or more. Germany tackles the problem another way, arresting victims for being reckless and stupid enough to get run over.

STIMULANT

Hudson Maxim started an argument when he declared that the Volstead act prohibited tea and coffee. In a cup of black coffee there is as much as two grains of caffeine, in tea there's tannin, another drug. Both of these are more stimulating than a similar amount of beer. But they aren't alcoholic.

In the old days black coffee was the bar-fly's favorite remedy for a hang-over.

Denmark's queen went skating and fell through the ice. That's what is rotten in Denmark, the ice.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column are made not as the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that the reader may see both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

MISLEADING HISTORY

History hangs its ribbons on great battles and great events. But Charles Dickens was right when he said, standing on the field of Waterloo:

"There are fiercer battles fought out every day in simple human hearts than ever were won upon these bloody fields."

Dickens, one of the soundest novelists that ever wrote in English, was chiefly great because he knew life, because he understood the human heart.

The world will listen to and preserve the work of men who know a little of life—as much as anyone can know—and write understandingly about it.

And no one can really be said to know life and no one can speak or write about it and about people with understanding unless he has broad human sympathy.

We must make allowance for his neighbor's misdoings, or what appear to be his neighbor's misdoings. He must learn to concede the possibility of sincerity on the part of the other fellow.

He must learn to do that most uncommon of all things—he must put himself in the other fellow's place, temperament and all, and try to think of things as the other fellow must think of them.

WHAT'S THE USERS?

The program of aerial exploits outlined by the United States for this year gives many a thrill of adventure and expectancy, but others are raising the old cry that it is foolish for men to risk their lives flying to the North Pole or flying around the world.

"What is the use of all this? What will we do with the North Pole if the Sledandah reaches it?" ask the skeptics and the what's the users of America.

It is a shame to make men go in the Sledandah to the North Pole; it is a shame to force men to fly around the world, in the viewpoint of thousands who fear that the army men and the navy men will not come back.

Oh, well, if horses always held back against the backstraps instead of pulling at the traces the wagon of progress would never have got ahead. What was the use of Columbus' trying to find a new route to India; wasn't the old route good enough? What was the use of ever anything of doing something different, of trying something new, of seeking new lands and new ways?

Yet if these flights are dangerous, there are men who would volunteer to make them, glad to risk their lives for new achievements, to pave the way for greater progress, men who know that some of the greatest things in history are yet to come.

IN LISTS OF SIX

Picking the six most important words in the English language seems to be the great indoor sport just now.

College presidents and professors are submitting imposing lists, usually containing such words as loyalty, service, self-control, sincerity, knowledge and magnanimity.

Those, to our way of thinking, are far from the most important. What about such words as yes, no, home, mother, God and humanity?

They certainly touch all our lives more intimately. But for the matter of that, no list that anyone chooses is of much value to anyone else.

The value comes in setting down one's own.

Words represent ideas, and the man who takes time to think out a list will find that he has there set down pretty completely his philosophy of life and the things in life that he considers most important.

What about such words as yes, no, home, mother, God and humanity?

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

On went the Twins—through the hallway of the palace toward the throne room where sat their majesties, the giant king and queen of Beantalk Land.

Everywhere the Twins went in their enormous seven-league boots, the same thing happened—crevices and courtiers and ladies-in-waiting fled in dismay at their approach. Because the Twins were not to be seen at all and the boots appeared to be walking by themselves.

The cook fled, the pages fled, and the court jester fled, all of his bells, jingling like Santa's reindeer on Christmas Eve.

"What is the matter with everybody?" shouted the giant king angrily. "Has everybody gone crazy? Come back here, every one of you, and get to your places at once!"

Just then he spied the empty boots approaching (or at least he thought they were empty) and his knees began to shake, and he shivered all over until his tail crown threatened to roll off his head. And the queen did the same, shivered and shook, and her crown nearly fell off, too.

They would have run away as well as the others, but how could they— with long robes and trains and a few other things that would have tripped a circus actor in two seconds.

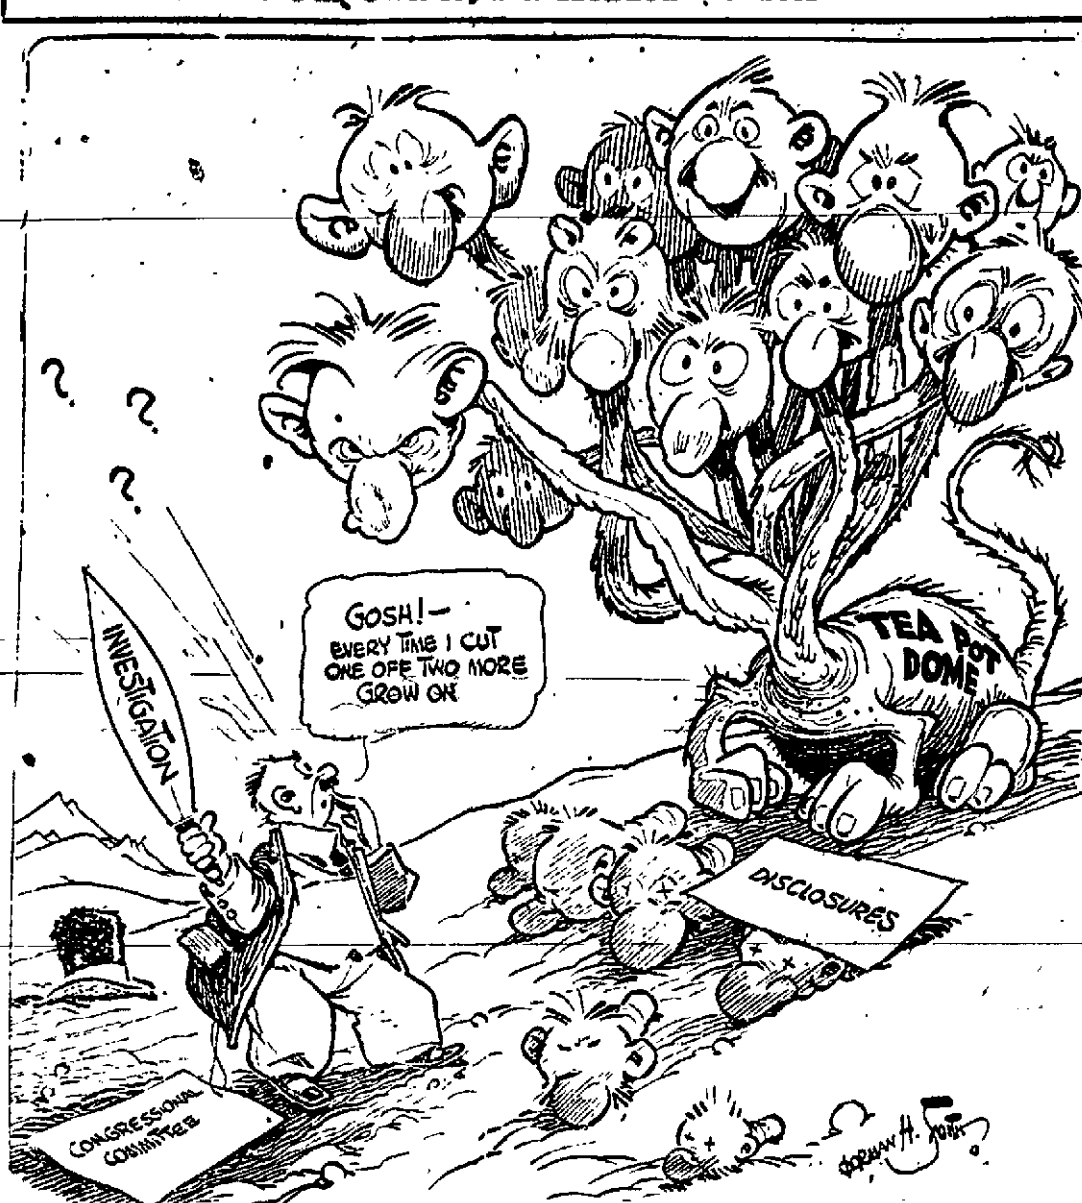

"What do you want?" asked the king shakily. "Lots of things!" called out Nick as loudly as he could. Of course the king thought it was the boot talking.

"If you will only stop where you are, I will give you whatever you want."

"So shall I," declared the queen. "Then," shouted Nick, "take off your crowns and make the Twins king and queen of Beantalk Land."

"What?" asked the surprised king.

Our Own Hydra-Headed Monster

"The Twins, Nancy and Nick," answered the boot, I mean, answered Nick's voice out of the boot.

"It shall be done at once," declared the king taking off his crown and laying it down.

"Anything you say, good boot!" said the queen taking off her crown, too.

"Now, then," said Nick's voice again, "since you have not been a kind king or queen to the giants in Beantalk Land, you must obey every command of the new king and queen."

"Yes, yes, yes!" agreed the king and queen quickly. "We will do anything at all. Where are these people?"

"Right here!" shouted Nick, and quick as two little squirrels, Nancy and Nick scrambled out of the seven-league boots and hopped up on the throne and sat down.

The real king and queen were too much astonished to speak, for never in their lives had they seen such tiny creatures.

"Put the boots away, please," said King Nick. "Certainly, sir!" answered the Beantalk King. "Anything else, sir?"

"Yes," put in Nancy. "Bring me a chocolate ice cream soda, with extra straws."

"Certainly, ma'am!" said the Beantalk Queen, and she hurried away to the kitchen. (To Be Continued.) (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

MANDAN NEWS

With the close of business hours at the city auditor's office accepted as the final time for filing of candidates for places on the city election ballot of March 18, six men had entered petitions with Auditor W. H. Seitz for the city commission, and one for justice of the peace and park commissioner.

L. E. Hensley, re-election as president of the commission will be opposed by Dr. A. O. Henderson.

Nels H. Romer and J. B. Fredericks, present board members standing for re-election, will be opposed by H. A. Schmidt and Ben Anderson.

Wunders of Sioux City, Iowa, will take place on Thursday, March 6th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson. The wedding will be a quiet one, only a few friends and relatives will be present at the ceremony.

AMPUTATED LIMB

A telegram states that the amputation of Mrs. Anderson's right arm, in order to save her life, was found necessary to amputate one of the limbs over the knee, and at the time the message was sent the attending physicians held out very little hope. LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO PAULA PERIER

MY DEAR PAULA:

Received your wire this morning, but I am afraid I can do nothing for you. Of course I can understand that you want your baby very much, but you must also remember you voluntarily gave him away and you made no answer when the court asked for any relatives to appear and say why he should not be adopted by Jack and Leslie.

You probably know Jack better than I, but I know him in a different way and I know he has grown to love the boy very much. Besides, he knows it would break Leslie's heart to give him up now.

Once, my dear girl, you fought against Leslie for Jack and lost, and I am afraid you will lose again, even though both times Leslie has been totally unconscious that anything was battling against her. With the bulwarks of respectability and right thrown up in front of her she could not lose.

You have grown to be a big woman, Paula. Big enough to forget this. You managed very well when you had to give up Jack's love. Is your mother love stronger than your love was for him or do you still want to hurt him as he has hurt you?

It's a great problem, my dear, and I do not feel at all able to advise you, an old bachelor like me. But I am very fond of you and of Jack, and I respect and regard Leslie more than any other woman on this earth. There! I'm telling you something I have never told anyone else, but I feel it true that John Alden Prescott got much more than he deserved when he was given the love of Leslie Hamilton and she became his wife.

I'm rather sorry you are going to Albany. Although, like every other two people who think they have been able to keep their affairs from the world, you must know that your affair with Jack before his marriage to Leslie was common talk among the men about town, as well as among the young society matrons whose husbands had confided in them the more or less true details.

All these old stories will be revived. All the old scandal will get a fresh start. If Jack and Leslie go together to see your picture when you make your personal appearance, everybody will say Jack is trying to bluff it out. If either of them go alone, the people will say Jack was afraid to take Leslie to see the picture. If neither of them go near you, someone is sure to hazard the opinion that Jack and Leslie have quarreled over you and neither dare go. You can under no circumstance stop the gossip you have started.

I shall be much interested to know the outcome of it all. Above all else I hope and pray nothing will be said or done to hurt Jack's wife, Leslie. She has not only been sweet and kind to your child, Paula, but she has been perfectly innocent in the matter.

Mrs. Wyman made the trip to and from Aberdeen by automobile, and according to Mr. Wyman the roads are as a general rule in first class condition, only occasionally on the verge of being a disaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyman also visited for a short time in Dubuque, Iowa.

XXXI (Continued) "It must have been a tussle. She looked as if about to lead a charge of cavalry, although, oddly enough, her full, sensuous mouth with its slightly protruding lower lip, was pouting. Beautiful she had never been; the large bony structure of her face was too uncoachable, her eyes too sharp and sardonic; but handsome certainly, and, no doubt, for many years after she had stood for this portrait in the full insolence of her young womanhood. She retained not a trace of that handsomeness today. Her hands were skinny, large veined, discolored by moth patches, and her large aquiline nose rose from her sunken cheeks like the beak of an old eagle—an indomitable old eagle. Many women of sixty-eight had worn far better, but looks need care, spurred by vanity, and she had a profound contempt for both. No doubt if she had made a few of the well known feminine concessions she would have looked at least ten years younger than her age, for she had never had a day's illness: eight lyings-in were not, in her case, to be counted as exceptions. No doubt, thought Claverling, as he turned to greet her, she had thought it quite enough to be imposing.

She certainly looked imposing tonight in spite of her old-fashioned corsets and her iron-gray hair arranged in flat rolls and puffs on the precise top of her head, for although flesh had accumulated lumpily on her back, her shoulders were still unbowed, her head as haughtily poised as in her youth, and the long black velvet gown with yellow old point about the square neck (the neck itself covered, like the throat, with net), and falling over her hands, became her style if not the times.

"Well, Lee!" she said drily. "I suppose when you got my note you thought I had gone bur-house, as my fastidious granddaughter Janet would express it. But that is the way I felt and that is the way I feel at the present moment."

"Dear Lady Janet! Whatever it is, here I am to command, as you see. There is no engagement I wouldn't have broken—"

"You don't suppose they worry their little heads with analysis, do you? Somebody started the idea and the rest followed like sheep. No doubt it had its real origin in the young men who did the fighting and saw their comrades die, and all the kudos carried off by the old men who ran no risks. They are very bitter. And women generally take their cues from men, little as they suspect it. However, whatever the cause, here it is, and what to do about it I've no more idea than you; but I should think it would be a good idea for Jim to take her abroad for a year."

"I don't see Jim giving up his clubs and sports, and tagging round the world after a napper. He never took himself very seriously as a parent. . . . all, he is really alarmed. . . . Are you going to marry Marian Lawrence?"

"Do you think I'd engage myself to any one without telling you first of all?"

"Better not. Are you in love with her?"

"No."

"I'm told you were devoted to her at one time. That was one of the times when I saw little or nothing of you."

"I've been devoted to quite a number of girls, first and last, but there's really been nothing in it on either side. I know what you're driving at. Shoot!"

"Yes, Jim said he told you. Well, I've changed my mind. Janet's a little fool, perhaps worse. Not half good enough for you and would devot the life out of you before you got rid of her in self defense. Let her hoe her own row. How about that writing person, Gora Dwight, you and Din are always talking about?"

"Never been the ghost of a flirtation. She's all intellect and ambition. I enjoy going there for I'm almost as much at home with her as I am with you."

"Hail! Harmless. I hope she's as flattered as I am. There remains Anne Goodrich. She's handsome, true to her traditions in every way—Marian Lawrence is a husky unless I'm mistaken and I usually am—not she has talent and she has cultivated her mind. She will have a fortune and would make an admirable wife in every way for an ambitious and gifted man. More pliable than Marian, too. You're as tyrannical and conceited as all your sex and would never get along with any woman who wasn't clever enough to repel to the administrative while twisting

AS THE OLD YEAR PASSES

By JOHN T. ADAMS,

Chairman of the Republican National Committee

The outstanding feature of the holiday season and the close of business for the year has been the unprecedented prosperity of the country. The retail trade is the measure of a people's financial condition. Retail sales of this holiday season, and of all the year, exceed anything in the history of America. Without any exception, every section of the United States reports record sales of merchandise. The mail order houses, the bulk of whose business is with agricultural sections, have broken all records in the quantity of goods sold this year. The chain-stores and department stores which do their business in industrial centers have the same report to make. This fact shows the mass of people have more money to spend this year than in any previous year.

This fact is verified in many ways. The total value of farm products for the year is estimated at over 16 billion dollars, an increase over last year of 13 per cent, over 1921 of 30 per cent, and over the pre-war period of 1910-14 of 72 per cent. The marketing of this enormous crop must of necessity provide the farming sections with ready money. Although they are breaking records in buying merchandise, not all of their money is being diverted to the retail trade. The reports of banks and the War Finance Corporation show the farmer is paying off his loans which he negotiated two and three years ago during the period of his stress. The savings deposits are over a billion dollars greater now than they were last year, and in the aggregate they fall only a little short of our total interest-bearing public debt. Commercial agencies report fewer failures in the trade than in previous years. All advertising records have been broken in the year 1923. More life insurance has been written this year than in any previous year. More wages and salaries are being paid in the nation than before in our nation's history, and the total amount of wages paid this year exceeds that of 1920 when industrial employment and wage levels were thought to be at their peak.

In these days of not being able to pay off more debt, spending more money, the quantity of legitimate trade, and at the same time saving more money than ever before in the history of the United States.

Sail And Steam Ships Soon Obsolete

Stockholm, Feb. 28.—The romance of the sailing ship will soon become a thing of the past in Sweden, Denmark and Norway, if one may judge by the statistics just given out by the Norske Veritas, which keeps the official shipping record of Scandinavia. Of the tonnage under construction in the yards of the three countries on January 1, not a single vessel was designed for sailing. But the steamship also appears to be doomed, for over one-half of the vessels now building in Scandinavian countries are to be motor-driven. Of the three nations Sweden is the only one that shows a net increase in the merchant fleet as the result of all construction, purchases, losses, sales, etc., during last year, the net increase being 16 vessels aggregating 57,000 gross tons. For Norway there was a decrease of 48 vessels totalling 36,000 gross tons, and for Denmark a decrease of 44 vessels totalling 24,000 gross tons. In Norway, however, steamships and motorships taken by themselves showed an increase of 17,000 tons.

LIGNITE CASE RENEWAL HELD NOT CERTAIN

Likely to be Completed in April. When Operators,
States Will Answer Roads

DOCK MEN TO APPEAR

The time of resumption of the hearing in the railroad case for an increase in lignite coal freight rates from North Dakota mines, fixed at "sometime after April 1" by Examiner W. H. Wagner of the Interstate Commerce Commission when the hearing was adjourned here yesterday, depends upon the determination of a date, probably in April, when Mr. Wagner will be able to return here, the railroad commission will be at liberty and chief counsel for the railroads and the operators will be free from other cases. No attempt is likely to be made to set a definite date for sometime. It is the desire of Chairman Millhollan of the state railroad commission that Mr. Wagner, instead of another examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission, complete the hearing. He left here for Spokane, Washington, and later will hold rate hearings in California.

The conclusion of the railroad presentation of the case found the North Dakota lignite operators, who presented no evidence at this time, confident they will be able to meet the issues raised, while railroad counsel felt that the unfairness to them of the present rates had been clearly established.

When the hearing is resumed it is expected that the Duluth lake docks, representatives, who are appearing in the case, will present their evidence. It is understood that they will allege the present rates on lignite constitute discrimination against coal distributed from the head of the lakes. The railroads' representatives did not directly raise the charge of discriminatory rates in their statement here.

While the operators have not disclosed the basis of their opposition, nor the representatives of Minnesota, North and South Dakota the opposition of these states to the proposed increase, it is expected that their defense will cover a wide range as did the evidence offered by the railroads in support of the increase. The economic value of the development of the lignite industry in North Dakota, its potential value to the entire Northwest as a source of fuel supply, the value of the commodity hauled in comparison to the value of other coals and their relation to rate schedules—all these are expected to figure in the case. The proposed increased rates remain under suspension pending the final decision. It is expected that the case will be completed and decision rendered sometime during the summer. It is said to be the practice of the Interstate Commerce Commission to render decision in cases in which rates have been suspended within three or four months after conclusion.

ASKS DETAILED INFORMATION ON COAL USED

Additional information in explanation of the statement showing the detail of coal shipments received by the respondent, the Hughes Electric company, in the period covered between January 1, 1923 and December 31, 1923, was asked in a petition filed with the state railroad commission today by L. G. Hildstrom, attorney for petitioners in the rate case.

He asked that the respondent furnish the lowest and highest prices paid for coal during the year, and that a tabulation of mine prices be furnished, together with the freight rates; also to state if any relation exists between the officers of the Hughes Electric Company and the Knife River Coal Mining Company of Bismarck.

SUBSCRIBERS TO AUDIT WILL BE REIMBURSED

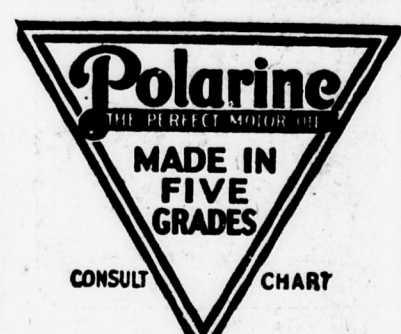

Persons who contributed to a fund in 1920 for the purpose of making an audit of North Dakota state industries may be reimbursed, by sending in their receipt slips to Attorney-General Shafer or Secretary of State Hall, the latter said today.

When the state board of auditors proposed to audit the industries in

"Gets-It" Makes Corns Vanish

Even Surgeons don't cut their own corns. They use "Gets-It" to rid their feet of corn or callous pests. Why should you risk infection or a slip of your razor when it is so easy to end corns and callouses, quickly, completely, permanently. Two or three drops of "Gets-It" stops all corn pains—then the corn loosens so you can peel it right off with never a twinge of hurt. Try it today. E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. 1920 there was no appropriation available.

A popular subscription was taken. The legislature last winter appropriated money to reimburse them. Repayment has been delayed because the state board of auditors has only recently obtained the original list of subscribers from a member of the board at that time, for checking purposes, Hall said. Approximately $12,000 will be paid back to subscribers, he said.

Are We Extravagant?

Here are some costs on Studebaker cars—
Would you have us cut them down?

WE are lavish on Studebaker cars. For some features we pay three and four times what they need cost.

Here are some of those costs which affect you. Tell us—would you want any one reduced?

Our prices on high-grade Sixes run from $1025 to $2685. They stand at bottom in the fine-car field, despite these extra costs. All because the demand requires 150,000 cars per year. But they could be lower if we cut these costs. Would you have us do it?

Engineering—$500,000
Our engineering departments cost us $500,000 yearly.

Our Department of Research and Experiment employs 125 skilled men. It spends vast sums in analyses and tests.

Our Bureau of Methods and Standards fixes every formula, every requirement. It makes 500,000 tests per year to maintain our high standards.

We make 30,000 inspections on every Studebaker car during manufacture before it goes out of the factory. We employ 1,200 men to do that.

Those are heavy costs. But remember how they are divided—by 150,000 cars per year. They form but a trifle per car.

$50,000,000 in plants

We have invested $50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment. $8,000,000 in drop forge plants. $10,000,000 in body plants—as the only way to do Studebaker coach work.

These plants are equipped with 12,500 up-to-date machines, many of them very expensive. But consider the alternative. Profits to other makers. We save up to $300 for you by building Studebaker bodies in our own body-plants.

15% extra on steel
On some steels we pay a bonus of 15% to the maker. Just to get our formulas exact. We could save that extra on "commercial runs."

We are one of the very few builders, either in Europe or America, using crankshafts machined on all surfaces. It costs us $600,000 a year to give you this. But it results in that smoothness of operation, that lack of vibration which characterizes only the most expensive cars.

Every Studebaker car is Timken-equipped. The Special-Six and the Big-Six have more Timken bearings than any car selling under $5,600 in America. The Light-Six more than any competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

Don't Buy a Fine Car until you see the leaders

Studebakers hold the top place in the fine-car field today.

Last year, 145,167 people chose them against all rivals. They paid $201,000,000 for them.

For 72 years the Studebaker name has stood for the utmost in quality. It will never stand for less.

Today there are assets of $90,000,000 staked on the Studebaker cars.

Don't pay $1,000 or more for a car without knowing what Studebaker offers. You will find here some scores of advantages. Learn what they mean to you.

Other costly extras

Our bodies are finished with 18 operations, including 15 coats of paint and varnish.

We use real leather upholstery. We could cut the price of our open models $25.00 were we willing to use imitation instead of genuine leather.

We upholster our closed models in the finest Chase Mohair. Cotton or ordinary wool, or a combination of both, would enable us to reduce our price from $100 to $150 per car. But we would thus sacrifice Studebaker quality and reputation.

SPECIAL-SIX

Touring	$1425.00
Roadster (2-Pass.)	1400.00
Coupe (5-Pass.)	1895.00
Sedan	1985.00

The many extras on our cars closed cars would cost much if you bought them. The nickel-plated bumpers, the extra disc wheels and cord tires, the steel trunk, the courtesy light, motometer, etc.

Extras to our men

We pay the highest wages. Then we add extras to it.

Men who are with us five years or over get 10% of their year's wages in an anniversary check. Those anniversary checks last year cost us $1,300,000.

After two years all employees get a week of vacation with pay. That cost us last year $45,000.

Old employees who retire get pensions.

All these things, with us, mean more and more to the men who buy Studebaker cars. But we do each such thing for five dollars or more. They agree with us.

The value of a car

The object of a car is to give you the utmost value. You do that if you compare Studebaker with any other car.

That is why, in the fine-car field, the Studebaker leader has almost trebled in ten years. These cars have a sensation of Motordom. Of these models we have never been able to meet the demand.

We spend money lavishly build without regard to cost in our quantity production, we bring costs to bottom.

You should learn what these things mean to you before you buy a car.
